CARNEGIE INSTITUTION

Annual Meeting of the Board of Trustees.

WORK OF PAST YEAR

A PRINTED REPORT WAS READ AND DISCUSSED.

Some of the Projects That Have Been Taken Up—Two Special Grants Made.

The annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institution was held today at the New Willard Hotel. Dr. John S. Billings, U. S. A., retired, chairman of the board, presided, and much business was gone over. The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock, and the first session continued until after noon, when a recess was taken until 2 o'clock. Only three members of the board were not in attendance, those present being John S. Billings, John L. Cadwalader, Cleveland H. Dodge, William N. Frew, Daniel C. Gilman, John Hay, Henry L. Higginson, E. A. Hitchcock, Charles L. Hutchinson, S. P. Langley, William Lind- say, Seth Low, Wayne M. Shepard, D. O. Mills, S. Weir Mitchell, William W. Morrow, Ellhu Root, Charles D. Walcott, Andrew White, Carroll D. Wright. The institution was founded by Mr. Andrew Carnegie in the winter of 1901-2, when he gave to a board of trustees $10,000,000 in registered bonds, yielding 5 per cent income. In general terms he stated that his purpose was to "found in the city of Washington an institution which, with the co-operation of institutions now or hereafter established, there or elsewhere, shall in the broadest and most liberal manner encourage investigation, research and discovery—show the application of knowledge to the improvement of mankind, and provide such buildings, laboratories, books and apparatus as may be needed." By an act of Congress, approved April 28, 1904, the institution went under the control of a board of twenty-four trustees, all of whom had been members of the previous board. The trustees act through an executive committee, by whom grants are made for specific objects from appropriations made by the trustees.

Applications Received. During the past two years many applications have been received, some of them demanding but slight consideration, while others were of great merit. A careful selection became necessary.

Some large projects which are to be promoted by the Carnegie Institution will absorb much of the income, but the aggregate of the smaller grants is also quite large.

A certain number of research assistants have been appointed. These are young men and young women who have shown unusual aptitude for scientific investigation, and have manifested a desire to take up some specific problem and work at it during one or more years. The stipend for these appointments is usually $1,000 per annum. The recipient is not allowed to be a teacher or a laboratory assistant in the usual sense of the word; he is expected to give all his time to the study of his subject, and to apply and to report upon the progress of his work at such times as the institution may require. No provision is made for the payment of "helpers" in colleges and laboratories.

Report of Work for Last Year.

At the meeting of the board of trustees this morning a printed report of the work of the institution for the previous year was discussed at length. Dr. Daniel C. Gilman and Dr. Charles D. Walcott, president and secretary of the institution, respectively, explained the various items in the report for the year. The members of the board who were not members of the executive committee, and who did not know the exact state of the affairs of the institution, from the report. No provision is made for the payment of "helpers" in colleges and laboratories. The institution has undertaken to publish certain works which would not read the light without aid from an endowment. It is not proposed to scatter these publications indiscriminately, for their contents are of interest only to students of the subjects discussed, but they can be bought at a low price.

Projects Taken Up.

The large projects taken up by the institution during the past fiscal year are as follows: The establishment of a department of experimental biology, with stations at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., and at the Dry Tortugas, Fla. The establishment of a department of economics and zoology. The establishment of a bureau of historical research. The establishment of a department of international researches in terrestrial magnetism. Two special grants were made: 1. For an archaeological expedition to the trans-Caspian region. 2. For geophysical research.

As an indication of what are called "secondary" or "minor" grants, the following examples may be cited: For the encouragement of biological researches at the marine biological laboratory, Woods Hole, Mass.; also at Dr. Dorn's laboratory at Naples. For anthropological investigation in the United States and archaeological investigations in Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Nubia, etc.

For important astronomical investigations in several of the great observatories and elsewhere. For the publication of the Index Medicus, a periodical in which the progress of medical science throughout the world is recorded; also for other important bibliographical work, such as the preparation of a Handbook of Learned Societies of America, etc. For investigation of desert vegetation. For a study of the fundamental principles of geology. For extended geological explorations in China. For investigations in nutrition at the laboratory at Storrs, Conn., etc.

The executive committee, which is charged with the task of supervising directly the work of the institution, includes the following members of the board of trustees: Dr. Daniel C. Gilman, chairman; Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary; Dr. John S. Billings, secretary John Hay, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell of Philadelphia, Mr. Ellhu Root of New York and Col. Carroll D. Wright.

Rear Admiral Ralph Aston, U. S. N. (retired), died at his home in Brooklyn yesterday of a complication of diseases, after an illness of two years. He was a native of Middletown, Conn., where he was born sixty-three years ago. In 1881 he became a third assistant engineer in the navy, and subsequently he was promoted to the rank of rear admiral.

ANXIOUS BIDDERS PRESENT.

Few Patrons of Dead Letter Sale Care to Exhibit Purchases.

There was no diminution today in the number shown in the dead letter sale now going on at Wilson & Mayer's auction rooms on G street. When the sale began at 10 o'clock the numbers unsold on the catalogue began somewhere in the neighborhood of 1,500, and before noon more than 200 packages had been sold at prices ranging around the dollar mark. Both the room allotted to men and that for women were packed with purchasers, and they bid for the mysterious packages as if their very lives depended upon getting them. There was a sigh of disappointment heard when a "horrid man" outbid a woman for a package of letters in his ungallant triumph an overcoat pocket the object for which she had fought with the backing of her pocket book. Although the packages went off with speed, there were few who had the courage to open their prizes in the rooms, but kept them for the privacy of their apartments. It is not a pleasant experience to buy a razor made of tin and solder for 70 cents, only to find that one has become the possessor of a tool more fit to cut cabbages than whiskers. Neither can the emotions of a woman be commensurately described when she has bid victoriously on a bunch of artificial flowers described in attractive terms in the catalogue, only to find that the same could be had at some local store for much less. She had paid for them wrapped in the mystery of the dead letter.

Some of the purchases were real bargains if one had any use for them, many articles being sold for a trifle of their real value. But this was entirely due to luck and the semblance of the lottery was only lacking because the dead letter office attempted to comply with the law, and told, as well as its clerks could, what the packages contained. And they contained everything but houses and lots, and some of them had even been reproduced in diminutive facsimile. From the rate at which the sum of the dead letter office is not likely that it will have been concluded and the entire lot of packages disposed of before the end of the week. The entire sum realized will be turned over to the dead letter office, less the commission charged by the auctioneers, according to their bid for the work to be credited to the fund applicable to the use of the dead letter branch of the postal service. At this time an estimate of the total amount from the sale cannot be well made, since it frequently happens that the last day the prices rise and that day's sale is entirely disproportionate to the others.

BOUGHT WITH MCKINLEY.

Death of Capt. John A. Harvey of Agricultural Department.

The funeral of Capt. John A. Harvey will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Epiphany P. E. Chapel, 12th and C streets southwest. It will be conducted under the auspices of Lebanon Lodge, No. 7, F. A. A. M., and the Grand Army of the Republic. Deceased had a noteworthy career as soldier, citizen and government official. For thirty years continuously he had performed faithful service in the Department of Agriculture, the official state of which he held at the time of his death. He held the joint office of captain of the watch and chief engineer of that department. Born in Kanawha county, W. Va., sixty-four years ago, he went over the state line into Ohio at the outbreak of the civil war and joined the buckeye regiment of which the late President McKinley was a member. Capt. Harvey related many incidents of bivouac, camp, the march and firing line in which Major McKinley was a participant. He never tired of telling about the incident of the bloody battle of Antietam when acting under Major McKinley's direct orders he drove the commissary wagon almost to the battle line, from the contents of which the late President carried cheer in the shape of hot coffee and a back to his command in the smoke and fire at the very forefront of the sanguinary struggle, and won for himself undying praise for his thoughtfulness, tact and bravery at such a trying time. At this time Capt. Harvey was a commissary sergeant, it is stated.
